Homemade Holiday

By Hillary Delaney, Local History Associate

They say necessity is the mother of invention, especially when prices soar. The holidays can be particularly challenging, sneaking up on us bringing added pressure to spend. We are bombarded by ads for the latest gifts, and store shelves transform into winter wonderlands as soon as school starts in the fall. It can feel overwhelming when the pressure to buy outweighs the joy of giving. The true spirit of the season gets lost. But sometimes that very necessity inspires the most meaningful and appreciated gifts: the homemade kind.

Not everyone can knit, carve, paint, cook, etc., but most of us know someone who might be willing to make something for us or even teach us how. Fall also brings plenty of craft shows, offering a wide range of prices and handmade goods for those who aren't feeling especially creative. For the less artistically inclined, there are tutorials, kits and Pinterest boards. For those who love history, the possibilities for DIY gifts are endless.

Reproductions of old family pictures can be slipped into a premade ornament or pasted into a collage on a lampshade or tabletop. Shared family recipes can be turned into a self-published cookbook or frameable kitchen art, with a historic photo of the original chef or the family at the table included. The cookie exchange model can be used for reproductions of old family photos and printouts of family stories, allowing everyone to share. Recordings of our family elders sharing stories about a time before we were in the world can be one of the most cherished and irreplaceable gifts.

Gifts that carry our family's history can also be living mementos. One of my favorites is dividing heirloom bulbs from my garden and passing them along to other gardeners along with a story of where the bulbs have been. Over the years, we've moved several times and brought a few bulbs with us, some of which have been cared for by generations before us. Sharing these plants allows us to continue the story with the next generation, creating a living connection to our family's past.

Of course, we can't always compete with the hottest new gift directly, but we can enrich our family's holidays by sharing our collective memories in these and any number of other ways. Make it yourself or get help from a creator you know, but homemade gifts are often the most cherished under the tree.

A Focus on Homelessness
in Boone County

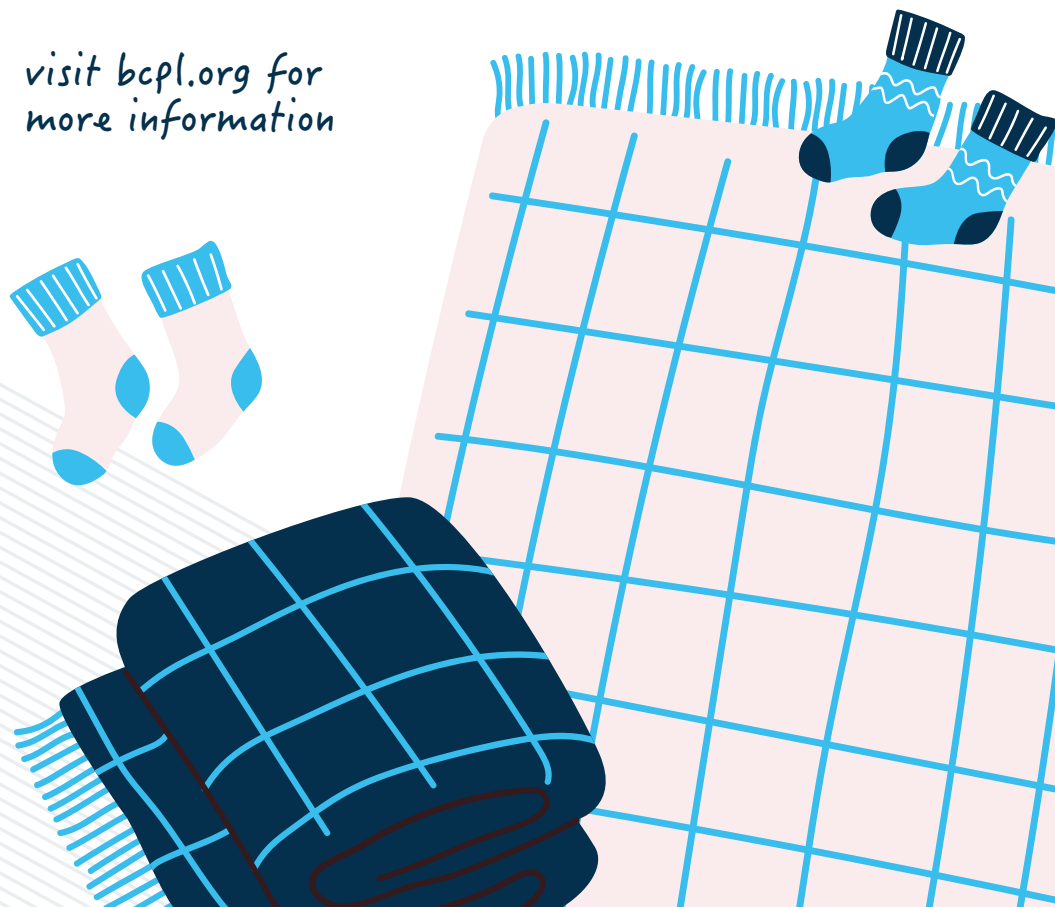

During the month of January, BCPL will be hosting Unseen Neighbors, a campaign focused on homelessness in Boone County. We will feature videos of local residents sharing their stories and host a special event to spark community conversation. Watch for details in the January Discover newsletter and on our social media platforms.

As we prepare, you can help our neighbors in need by donating blankets and socks at any BCPL location from December 1 through January 31. Donations can be placed in bins marked Unseen Neighbors, and all items will support our community through the K-Count and local organizations.

Sarah Pennington Youth Services Manager

Every day at the library is unpredictable—and I love it! As someone with many different hobbies and interests, I could never decide what I wanted to be when I “grew up” until I realized that librarians can do anything!

Although originally from Indiana, where I earned my Master’s in Library Science from IUPUI, home has been in Cincinnati for the last ten years. I have worked at several different libraries in the Cincinnati area including Mason Public Library, MidPointe Library System and Cincinnati Public Library. I fell in love with Youth Services because I love to perform, and let’s be honest, kids make such fun audiences! After all that hopping around between libraries, I have finally found my place at BCPL. The staff and patrons are so welcoming and have such a deep passion for the library.

I am working on my Master’s of Fine Arts in Creative Writing for Children and Young Adults from Hamline University, where I have had the honor of participating in workshops and one-on-ones with published authors such as Tae Keller (How to Trap a Tiger) and Laura Ruby (Bone Gap).

I’m a proud mom to my 7-year-old daughter and 20-year-old stepson. My husband, a librarian at Dayton Metro Library, and I love reading, writing and creating art together. We recently tied the knot in Iceland, and I practically had to drag him back to Cincinnati afterward! We share our home with two dogs, a giant Lab-Mastiff mix and a spirited corgi.
